

Trice Imaging Contributes to Patient and Healthcare Staff Safety During COVID-19 - With Free Access to Cloud Solution for Remote Medical Imaging

Right now, the world's healthcare systems are facing unprecedented challenges. Providers from around the globe are coming together, fighting day and night to find ways to protect an overwhelming number of people from the COVID-19 pandemic. For this we are all eternally grateful.

As part of the healthcare community, we at Trice feel a profound duty to support those on the frontlines, especially our healthcare workers and first responders in the field. We have made the only right decision: We provide the clinical workflows of Tricefy, our collaboration, automated routing and reporting tools, free of charge to any healthcare provider around the world for the next 90 days.

Tricefy can help immensely in this acute situation. Our secure remote access enables our users to work from home. Our remote consultation and collaboration feature enables providers to come together to triage and diagnose and our automated routing system allows our customers to network different locations together and send data into other critical hospital systems. With these tools you can connect to other providers to minimize in-person visits, maximizing quality of care while protecting both yourself, your staff and your patients from unnecessary exposure.
