Campsite Eyewitness Accounts

Groundskeeper #1:

"I feel a lot safer without the wolves around. I think it will be better for our campers too. Wolves always killed other animals like deer, moose, and bears. But now that they are gone, I don't have to clean up their bloody messes!"

Groundskeeper #2:

"I've been here 20 years and haven't seen a moose in a while. These moose are weird though. They keep shedding their fur and have all of these dark tiny dots all over their bodies. Not sure where they went, but I can't say I'm too thrilled they are back."

Camp Counselor #1:

"All of our campers had massive mosquito bites last summer! All they did was scratch away when we tried to run activities. I am sooo glad they sprayed insecticide along the cabin areas near the streams because hopefully we won't have any more bug bites this coming year! It did turn the water green for a few months, but the color returned to normal the other week."

Camp Counselor #2:

"I love spotting the gray foxes with my campers! Their puffy tails are so cute, but the foxes are looking like they've gained a lot of weight recently. It's weird because the animals they usually eat are doing fine. It's almost like the foxes are eating midnight snacks!"

Cook:

"Ugh, the compost piles are so smelly, but I guess if they are helping our campsite, I will continue to do it. I never see any animals when I put new food scraps in the compost piles, but I usually go when there's daylight."

Cabin Construction Worker:

"We just finished this huge project for the campsite, building brand new cabins for new campers this summer! It took a long time to cut down the trees and clear any plant matter in the area that we built, but it will be worth it when more scholars can enjoy their camping experience!"
