An income so life can go on as your estate is being finalised

Your loved ones have been depending on you for day-to-day financial needs and security, and will need to cover daily and monthly expenses while your estate is being finalised. There may be financial demands of paying bills and other costs which they haven't had to pay for previously, e.g. medical aid expenses, utility bills, bond repayments, and other general living expenses.

The Death Income Benefit will pay out a regular income to the beneficiaries you've nominated, for a specified term, so that they are covered financially.

Support your dependants financially when you plan proactively

You can nominate up to six beneficiaries and the Death Income Benefit will pay out within a day after a claim has been assessed and approved.

They will receive a hassle-free regular income for 6, 12 or 24 months, helping them to survive financially while the estate is being finalised.

You can also combine it with the following benefits to ensure that you have a comprehensive, cost effective solution that will cover all your estate planning needs on one policy:

- The Estate Provider Benefit gives you a professionally drafted will and funds for estate and trust administration
- Last Survivor Death Benefit provides life cover at a fraction of the price of a normal death benefit, and your spouse won't need to pay any further premiums after your death.
